

DESCRIPTION

The Professional Development Program provides foundational skills and guidance for front-line to mid-level managers. The course focuses on both the practical skills and the character-trait development necessary for successfully managing yourself, your team, and your contribution to organizational success.

The 48-hour program includes 3 main segments: Managing with Respect and Reason, Leading Thriving Teams, and Building Organizational Capacity. The course is taught in a highly interactive, experiential way. Participants will finish the course with practiced skills that can be immediately used in the workplace, as well as a strong foundation for continued growth in their roles.

This course is offered in the Four Corners area to enable companies to build their workforces internally by hiring and developing talented local staff.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

This program is for front-line to middle managers who manage both people and projects, and who have at least six months of experience in a management role.

TALENT & DEVELOPMENT

The Economic Development Alliance and P4 Consulting are in partnership with the following local facilitators to design and deliver this program: Mark Haeussler at Alpine Leadership, Sam Carter at Human Accelerated Performance and Deanne Idar at Top Seed Leadership Coaching.

Organization

Organizations will see an increase in workforce and staff productivity, reduced turnover, and more.

Managers

Front-line and mid-level managers will develop leadership skills for a more successful career.
